"The South 40"

by JAMES A. SMITH
EXTENSION AGENT

Quite a few farmers participated in the Pesticide Certification last spring. We are told that VDA has mailed out 10,000 private licenses; these carry an expiration date of December, 1977. These licenses will automatically be renewed through Dec., 1980. The new licenses will be mailed in October, 1977.

Entry forms for the 1976 Dark Fired Cured Tobacco Recognition Awards program are being mailed this week. Last year 66 growers participated in the program. We have as a goal this year 100. Please return your application as soon as possible.

The June report on foreign grain production says that because of a cold and dry spring the People's Republic of China's winter wheat production is down and the planting of spring wheat has been reduced.

In Southern China wet weather delayed transplanting of early rice and the acreage is reduced.

Of interest to soybean growers is the fact that U.S. imports of palm oil from October '75 to April was up 90% above the same 7-month period a year earlier. Coconut oil for the same period more than doubled.

Mr. Dairyman operates an expensive and relatively complicated milking system. If this equipment is to perform efficiently without injury to the cow and an adverse affect on the quality of milk, it should be checked every three months. It should be checked as a package - not piecemeal. It needs to be checked with gauges for vacuum, compression, etc. Cows don't just get mastitis, we cause it to happen and improper milking equipment is the principal culprit. A regularly scheduled visit should be made with your serviceman.

In recent weeks I've observed fertilizer salt injury in tobacco and vegetable gardens.

When transplants fail to grow off as expected it's mighty easy to give a stock answer that it's too cold, too dry, herbicide injury, insect injury, or maybe the moon was wrong.

This year fertilizer salts injury was predictable for April. The problem occurs when fertilizers are closer than about 3 inches to plant roots and the soil is dry. Salts in the fertilizer pull water away from plant roots and kill the tiny root hairs which start forming about five days after transplanting. To avoid this there is no substitute for proper placement of fertilizer and not over-fertilizing. North Carolina is recommending that tobacco growers use a transplanter - fertilizer distributor, but even with this care must be used. Some North Carolina growers are not applying any fertilizer until 10 days after transplanting. This eliminates the fertilizer salts problem and reduces the possibility of leaching in the first few days, BUT if it gets wet and you can't get in the field, another problem develops.

FRCC Sets Dance For Tournament Participants

Falling River Country Club will have a pool-side dance on Saturday night, June 26 for all members and guests participating in the annual Member-Guest Golf Tournament and their wives or guest.

Due to the large number of participants in the Member-Guest Tournament set for June 26-27, the dance will not be open to club members.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH POSTER - Because this is the Bicentennial year, I decided to make my poster entirely around this idea. Since this year's theme was "Milk Keeps Americs Strong", it was fairly easy for me to center around the Bicentennial Theme. I thought the poster should represent America and its strength, along with the strength given by milk. I felt that Uncle Sam would be a good image to represent America's strength. For the background I chose stars and stripes. On the poster I have Uncle Sam holding a glass of milk in one hand, and a carton of milk in the other. I felt that this idea would get the point across that milk really does keep America strong. Lisa Dickerson

4-H DAIRY MONTH POSTER - My poster is about a millionaire who believes in keeping his body in shape. He buys weights to exercise his body daily. He spent thousands of dollars on a milk fountain which attracts milk drinkers from all over the world. He takes a drink of milk out of his fountain every day then the next morning when he gets up he feels like a new man. Whenever the milk fountain runs out of milk, the milk truck comes and fills it up with milk again.

I got the idea one night when I was watching the "Beverly Hillbillies", and thought about making this my 4-H poster because seeing how strong they were seemed to fit the title, ("Milk Helps Keep America Strong".) that night as I lay asleep in bed, I dreamed the whole poster and how I would draw it. The next morning I drew my idea down on paper so I would not forget it then I drew it on a poster and colored it.

Thomas Drewry

WINNER IN POSTER CONTEST - My name is Joanie Canada. I am 11 years old and just completed the 6th grade. I am a county winner in the Appomattox County 4-H Dairy Poster Contest.

I was very surprised when I heard I had won and that my poster will be entered in the state contest! People think I got the idea from a book or someone else. But I got it from my head. I thought that Uncle Sam represeented America and that if he is strong, then America has to be strong. I also thought that maybe the flag would give it a little color, so that is what I ended up with - and I am very happy!

If America is to continue to grow and prosper, it's going to need more energy. That means more power plants.

No matter what type of plant we build, inflation guarantees that tomorrow's electricity is going to cost more.

But we can help control future cost increases by choosing the most economical fuel to power new plants.

The choices.

In this area, oil and natural gas are both scarce and expensive. Foreign oil is too politically unstable to depend on. Solar energy, geothermal energy, tides, and wind power are all interesting, but are not practical or economical at the present time for generating electricity.

The only choices left are coal and nuclear energy.

A coal-fired plant is less costly to build than a nuclear plant, but coal itself is more expensive than nuclear fuel because uranium produces much more energy per dollar.

A nuclear power plant costs more to build, but at present the fuel it operates on costs considerably less than coal because of uranium's high energy production per dollar. Even if the price of uranium were to increase substantially, the electricity produced in nuclear plants should still be lower cost.

Which is better?

To answer this, we have to consider how the choice will affect you.

Your total electric bill is made up of two parts— a base rate covering operating and fixed expenses, and a fuel adjustment covering changes in fuel costs.

In the case of building a coal-fired plant, the higher investment costs today would raise the base rates. In addition, the higher fuel cost would result in an increase in the fuel adjustment. Both rates and fuel adjustments, of course, are subject to the approval of the state regulatory commission.

In the case of building a nuclear plant, the base rates would probably increase more than they would if a coal-fired plant were built. But the fuel adjustment would drop.

The cost is more in both cases. But with nuclear, the overall result at the present time is a smaller increase in your bill.

Everything considered, the nuclear power plant is the best choice Vepco has at the present time for holding down future costs.

The challenge for the future.

Despite rising costs, America must develop its own domestic supply of dependable, affordable energy. It must lessen its present dependence on costly foreign oil.

That's why Vepco is turning more and more to nuclear power, pumped storage hydroelectric power, and coal where it is more economical than oil. Meanwhile, we're urging conservation of electricity in every way possible.

By developing a balanced system of generation and by using energy wisely, Vepco and its customers can help America reach its goal of energy independence.

Vepco
America is a powerful idea.
Let's keep it that way.
